

Tuesday Talk

Utility Impostors

Recently national news outlets have run stories on utility impostors. The stories show reporters going undercover posing as utility workers to see how many residents will allow them into their homes.

These stories remind us to be vigilant about allowing access into our homes. Please remember the following:

- Official utility personal will always have an ID/credentials.
- Utility workers rarely show up at a home without prior notification.
- Residents can call the utility company to confirm worker activity in the area.
- If you see something suspicious, call the Police.
