Put Down Your Phone in Construction Zones

Beginning October 1, 2016, State law prohibits talking, texting, navigating or otherwise use your cell phone while driving in construction zones, except to report an emergency. A fine of $20 to $40 could be imposed on drivers talking on handheld cellphones in construction zones, with the fine upping to $50 to $100 for subsequent offenses within a year.

This does not apply to the use of voice-operated or hands free devices if the driver of the vehicle does not use his hands to operate the device except to activate or deactivate a feature or function of the device.

Coyote Program

September through January, young coyotes begin dispersing from their birth territory in search of new territory. As a result, people may begin to see more of these young coyotes in new areas, including residential ones.

On October 4 and October 11, the DNR and Milwaukee County Parks will be hosting a coyote program, where concerned citizens may ask questions or express concerns about their coyote situation in their neighborhood. Find out more here.
